The thought of parading around a public bar in your knickers is the average barty's worst nightmare. But for Australia's Next Top Model finalists, it was the latest "reward".

Two of the five remaining finalists "won" the chance to hoof it with other Bonds models showing off the brand's new range of smalls, at Paddington's Fringe Bar this week.

The show's host, Jodhi Meares, was a surprising no-show given her history with the venue. Before she became the first Mrs James Packer, she hosted a weekly session called "beers with Meares".
